National Academic Advising Association 2010 Annual Awards Program

The National Academic Advising Association (NACADA) is pleased to offer the 2010 Annual Awards Program. These awards are designed to honor individuals and institutions making significant contributions to the improvement of academic advising.

Reward Systems

Many institutions of higher education have few effective systems in place for the evaluation of academic advising, and little reward or recognition is attached to its successful delivery. Good advising, like good teaching, publication and research, needs to be recognized. NACADA believes a tangible reward system can be an enhancement to effective advising.

Our Goal

The goal of the NACADA Annual Awards Program is to encourage wider support and recognition for academic advising in colleges and universities by providing an opportunity for recognition of outstanding advising. An ultimate outcome of this program is to improve advising services for students.

Awards Presentation

All awards will be presented at the 2010 NACADA Annual Conference being held on October 3 - 6, 2010 in Orlando, Florida. The selection committees reserve the right to make no awards in a certain category.

Information and Tips for Nominators

- Self-nominations are acceptable. Directors may nominate their own advising programs.
- Current members of the Board of Directors and Council are not eligible for consideration for any annual NACADA individual awards. After the member's term of office is over, s/he may then be eligible for consideration.
- Nomination materials submitted cannot be returned.

To present your nomination in the best possible light, keep in mind that:

1. Nomination forms should be typed (or printed).
2. You must submit the exact number of complete sets of all nomination materials requested. All materials must be collated into complete sets.
3. It is best to submit only letters and/or materials that add substance to the nomination. Quality is appreciated more than quantity. A well-written and documented submission increases the likelihood of a positive outcome.
4. Letters written directly to the Committee or additional material sent separately from your packet cannot be considered. Be sure to request that all support letters and documentation be returned to the nominator gathering the information for inclusion in the nomination packets.
5. Nomination packets must include only original documentation prepared specifically for the NACADA Awards Program. Materials intended for other award programs will not be considered.
6. It is a good idea to use title pages to divide sections. Colored paper may be used for this purpose, if desired.
7. You should not use binders of any sort. Staple the packet together.
8. Videos, CDs and DVDs will not be accepted in support of any nomination in any category except Advising Technology Innovation Awards.
9. Submissions that do not meet the submission requirements will not be evaluated.
10. It is recommended that nomination materials be sent by a shipping service for which delivery can be tracked. NACADA always sends an e-mail confirmation to the nominator upon receipt of each submission. Contact NACADA at nacada@ksu.edu if you do not receive an e-mail confirming receipt of your nomination materials within a couple of days after you have tracked and confirmed delivery online.

NACADA Research Grants

The National Academic Advising Association has a long history of supporting research about academic advising. At present the Association, through its Research Committee, has a particular interest in soliciting proposals involving such topics at the following:

- Conceptual studies of academic advising from the viewpoint of other academic disciplines to analyze the relation of disciplines to the practice of academic advising or to advance our understanding of academic advising.
- Speculative studies examining the role of academic advising in meeting the learning mission of higher education or examining the role of academic advising in preparing students for citizenship in a democratic society. Such studies can be thought of as advancing a philosophy of advising.
- Research examining the specific factors or characteristics involved in effective academic advising and development of assessment procedures using these identified factors or characteristics as outcome measures. Such studies can be thought of as advancing the pragmatics of advising.
- Identification of specific student-learning outcomes as measures of successful academic advising. Included would be delineation of pre- and post-measures to evaluate as benchmarks of student learning that clearly relate directly to the academic advising interaction and process. The committee's complete research agenda can be found at www.nacada.ksu.edu/Clearinghouse/Research_Related/researchagenda.htm.

Research Grants are managed entirely by the NACADA Research Committee. Two submission cycles per year have been implemented for these grants.
