Foster communities of practice that empower members to advance the scholarship of academic advising.	Hosting and supporting opportunities for creating and disseminating theory, philosophy, and history-oriented scholarship in academic advising	TPHAC-hosted events throughout the year, as well as co-chairing the Scholarly Papers session type for Annual conferences.	AC will host quarterly online TPHtalks on relevant and timely topics. AC will pursue objectives specifically related to the history of academic advising, including but not limited to both a physical archive of items and a virtual home for studies in the history of the field. Chair and SC members will continue to contribute to scholarly paper session leadership, informing and	Chair and SC members will seek out appropriate collaboration for events and cross-promotion. We plan to expand these joint activities and publications to include other ACs interested in pursuing the place of advising scholarship in their ACs.	We anticipate continued disruption to advisors' personal and professional lives. We will plan events in advance but remain flexible to emerging needs of AC members. Advisors continue to need additional support to make scholarship a priority during this complex time and TPHAC will aim to provide that support, as well as refer to other strong NACADA resources.

Optimize the globalization of the association, including the community of members, network of partnerships, engagement with scholarship, and relevance of professional development opportunities.	Partnerships with a minimum of 3 other ACs to create updated resources relevant to theory, philosophy, and history of advising for the professional development of advisors.	We intend to poll the TPHAC membership to identify 1) which ACs they are already part of and 2) which ACs might be priorities for partnership requests. Then, based on responses, we will work with other ACs to create a "TPH in ____AC" document for each.	At least 3 such "TPH in ___AC" documents.	TPHAC membership via polling; EO liaison; other AC chairs and member volunteers.	The challenges never seem to be the idea or the support of the idea.Rather, the challenges seem to be the doing of the work. We hope that by starting 1) small and 2) specific, we can overcome those challenges.
Examine and align the structure and infrastructure of the association to best support advancement of the vision, mission, and strategic goals.	Last year, the AC adopted an organizational structure aligned with no more than 3 identified projects and priorities. This year, we endeavor to have all Action Groups include 1 SC member and 2 AC members at large.	Action Group google form sign ups will be weekly followed up with, as well as monthly communication from and about AG activities, with invitations to join.	AG reports at quarterly SC meetings. AG membership rosters on AC website. AG sections of monthly AC newsletters.	EO liaison	Same as the above 2 goals, but combined.
