Goal #2 Provide responsive professional development opportunities	Allow new advising professionals to connect with seasoned professionals to gain insight and career advice	Connect interested interest group members with volunteer seasoned advisors, with email response expectations set	Basic survey for satisfactory interaction  CC chair on emails to quantify interactions	Many advisors in the other interest groups would be appropriate to connect with new advisors	-Solicitation of seasoned advisors -Participation motivation, establishing clear expectations -matching of focus and interest	Two unsolicited questions have been addressed through the listserv.  No purposeful connections are quantifiable from these interactions.  55 volunteers volunteered to review proposals	Make better use of the social media to address questions  Provide a more formal structure for matching new advisors to seasoned advisors, include webex meetings or other video connections to entice more participants.
Goal #2 and #7 Professional development and innovative technology	Provide virtual meetings with guiding discussion topics monthly or bimonthly	Connecting with the steering committee to determine appropriate technology, scheduling, and topics	Initially, number of participants.  Perhaps a rubric rating engagement	Technology in advising	-connecting schedules of the steering committee -soliciting participation/ -technological issues	Limited connection with the steering committee member proved insurmountable for this. No	Solidifying participation of steering committee at the business meeting, with explicit expectations for meetings and meetings were scheduled or pursued.	communications. Additionally, I wonder if a listserv is the best form of communication to reach the community members and would pursue a different mode of communication.
