Develop and sustain effective Association leadership	Sustain the membership of the Faculty Advising Community Steering Committee by defining and assigning key roles.	1. Establish roles and expectations within the steering committee. 2. Distribute steering committee activities among members based on expectations of each individual's role.	Documented roles and expectations for process for steering committee members.	Other advising communities that have successfully implemented sustainable leadership structures will serve as examples for this work.	Some steering committee roles will involve more time and effort than others (e.g. virtual journal club coordinator), and it may be difficult to attract volunteers to fill those positions	The AC successfully recruited and added 3 new steering committee members who have been active, though individual roles have not yet been established.	The steering committee needs to establish roles and expectations for each member

1. Expand and communicate the scholarship of academic advising 2. Provide professional development opportunities that are responsive to the needs of advisors and advising administrators	Expand our collaboration with other advising communities to engage the membership in shared dialogue about faculty advising and advising scholarship via a virtual spotlight series or similar activities	1. Contact potential collaborators. 2. Organize and conduct identified activities.	Learning outcomes for each activity/session will be developed as part of the planning process, based on the content of each activity/session, and will be assessed after each activity/session.	We will continue to partner with NACADA Center for Research and the Small Colleges and Universities advising community. Other potential partners include, STEM Advising, Advisor Training and Development, and/or Assessment of Advising.	After trying both the virtual journal club and panel discussions the two biggest challenges are 1) scheduling at a time when members are available to participate and 2) assessing the impact of these activities, since our average attendance is low enough (~10) to make meaningful assessment difficult.	The AC continued to provide virtual journal club sessions through the beginning of the pandemic	The AC is planning a new professional development series for fall, potentially collaborating with the new advisor wellness AC
