CANADIAN ADVISING COMMUNITY

Community description: This community provides an opportunity for advisors within Canada to find a common space to identify and address issues pertaining to the role of academic advising as it evolves within the Canadian context.

Neil Cole, University of New Brunswick
ncole@unb.ca
Shea Ellingham, Mount Royal University
sellingham@mtroyal.ca

Current HOT TOPICS in this area and one related article or resource:

- Recognize the diversity of approaches to advising across Canada
  - The relationship between academic advising and student success at Canadian Colleges: A review of the literature
- Promoting the field of advising across the country and encouraging advisors to seek out training and professional development opportunities
  - Advisor training and development online discussion

Two things you need to know about working effectively with the Canadian Advising Community:

Our primary goal is to provide a space for discussion, sharing best practices and advancing the field of advising across the country. We encourage all academic advisors in Canada to engage with their profession and NACADA, present at conferences, facilitate informal online discussion groups and publish articles in Academic Advising Today.

Your community leaders are here to support advisors across the country. Reach out and connect with us! We want to hear from you and what you want to learn from your fellow advisors.

For more information check out our webpage at: https://www.nacada.ksu.edu/Community/Advising-Communities/Canada.aspx