Greetings Advisors Extraordinaire!

I hope this message finds you all well. As spring term rolls along, it is that time of year when you and your students are likely talking about fall schedules. Perhaps it is the spring thaw and the change of seasons that accompanies this period, but it is always one of my favorite times to advise. Talking with students about the culmination of their year and the excitement of what's to come in the fall (or perhaps over the summer), is often where we begin to see their growth as scholars. The spring is just so great for reflecting and planning.

With that in mind, I hope those of you who attended regional conferences have had the time to process and unpack what you learned. For those whose regional conferences are still ahead, I hope you are planning ways to maximize your conference time as a way to develop your practice and recharge your batteries for the push toward graduation season. If you didn't or can't make it to your regional conference, in the future please know that you can always attend events outside of your geographic region.

In case you didn't hear, the 2022 Annual Conference will be held at the Oregon Convention Center in Portland, OR from October 23 -26. The call for conference proposals closed and you should know by now if a proposal you submitted was selected. Don't forget to confirm and "accept" your invitation to present if you received one and please don't forget to start planning your travel and lodging arrangements. It's going to be a super-fun conference in a cool and funky place. We hope to see you there!

With gratitude,

Banks
Call for Participation

The NACADA Professional Development Committee is working on planning a webinar in conjunction with the release of the 2nd edition of the NACADA Academic Advising Core Competencies Guide this September. During the broadcast, we would like to highlight examples of implementation/utilization of the Core Competencies in advising practices, processes, and/or structures. Examples can be individual/departmental/institutional utilization within training/onboarding, professional development, assessment, work-flow processes, etc.

Should you have an example of utilization you would be willing to share, please complete this interest form.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact PDC member Amber Bollinger (amber.bollinger@warrington.ufl.edu) or Webinar Producer Leigh Cunningham (leigh@ksu.edu).
