

If elected as the Georgia Liaison, I am committed to cultivating new and/or strengthened relationships among those in higher education within Georgia, the region, and nationally. As 2020 has already demonstrated to us, academia is in a time of many unknowns. Processes and practices are being altered daily to attempt to best support our students. As an advising community, the passion and drive to move forward that I have witnessed could very well revolutionize the future practices in advising. As Georgia Liaison, I believe that I could play a pivotal role in furthering the communication on these learned lessons that best assist the advising community, as a whole. Together, let's continue to modernize the advising practices that the students of today need. Let's build stronger and more meaningful relationships with each other and with our students.
