

The Advisor/Advising Bucket List

Long walk-in lines, full appointment calendars, and countless emails often relegate professional development to the sidelines of our day to day priorities. While many of us spend a majority of our time helping our advisees identify their own goals, along with concrete plans to implement them, we rarely spend time on refining our own. This program is specifically designed to allow all advisors, regardless of experience, to reflect on their practice, create personal and professional goals, and become re-energized by creating their Advisor Bucket List. Interestingly, the daily life of an advisor often resembles that of a busy college student. Therefore, this program will take this metaphor even further by demonstrating how the Advisor Bucket List can be adapted as a program and delivered to students on your campus as well.
