

Connecting with Students Utilizing a Syllabus and Blog

Patterson, James Madison University

Utilizing an advising syllabus and blog can help you create a structure for a year-long developmental advising plan! These tools can help you conceptualize, implement, and reinforce intentional interactions with advisees throughout the year, particularly first-year students. During this presentation, learn the benefits and components of these tools, and the positive results for the presenter – including managing your advising load better. This presentation is appropriate for all comfort levels with technology.
