The Guinness Storehouse sits in the middle of Dublin, in the legendary St. James' Gate Brewery, home of Guinness since 1759. In days gone by it was a fermentation plant, but today it has been transformed into Ireland's number one international visitor attraction. Designed in the shape of a giant pint glass, standing seven stories high, if filled it would hold 14.3 million pints!

Join us for an afterhours self-guided tour and a complimentary Guinness, followed by a supper club buffet dinner in the Arrol Suite.

You can catch a city bus 123, in Dublin's city centre, at O'Connell Street. The bus runs every 8 to 10 minutes. Or, catch the bus 123 from Dame Street, it also runs every 8 to 10 minutes. It is about a 10 minutes journey.

Entrance to the Guinness Storehouse is via the events entrance at the side of the Storehouse along the cobbled street. The doors will open promptly at 7:30 pm. Sorry, no early entrance.
