A. Purpose and Overview of NACADA Journal

The NACADA Journal was founded in 1981. It is the biannual (published in June and December each year) refereed journal sponsored by NACADA: The Global Community for Academic Advising. The NACADA Journal exists to advance scholarly discourse about the research, theory and practice of academic advising in higher education. For more than 35 years the NACADA Journal has served as the preeminent authority on academic advising in higher education. Research is broadly defined by NACADA as “scholarly inquiry into all aspects of the advising interaction, the role of advising in higher education, and the effects that advising can have on students” (NACADA Task Force on the Infusion of Research, 2008). This definition is, in part, based on Boyer’s (1990) four elements of scholarship of discovery, integration, application, and teaching and grounded in a belief that research, theory, and practice are interconnected and dynamic.

B. Qualifications

- Publication of an article in a peer-reviewed journal (preference for NACADA Journal publication)
- Experience in academic advising
- Interest and strength in quantitative and/or qualitative research methodology
- Active membership in NACADA (highly preferred)
- Terminal degree (preferred)

C. Expectations

- Review manuscripts for significance, appropriateness, research design, analysis, and quality of writing within 30 days of receipt.
- Provide constructive feedback that will assist authors to improve manuscripts.
- Ability to use Microsoft Word and email with attachments.
- Annual attendance at the Editorial Board meeting held during the annual NACADA Conference each year. (Preferred)
- Present Publish with NACADA presentation at NACADA regional conference. (Preferred)

D. Appointment

- Editorial Board members serve three-year terms that begin and end at the annual NACADA conference.
- An Editorial Board member may serve non-consecutive terms.
E. Application

Persons familiar with the field of academic advising who are interested in seeking membership on the Editorial Board should submit an email message to journals@ksu.edu stating interest in and rationale for serving as a member of the NACADA Journal Editorial Board. A professional resume prepared in Microsoft Word “.docx” format should be attached.